Meet Your Instructor

Hey there! This is Rommel Corral, founder of the Dynamic Leadership Training Program. I created this program to help underappreciated managers, busy executives, and ambitious professionals quickly become an influential leader while improving their confidence without overwhelming workloads, always being "busy", or not knowing what to say.

When I started my career, I advanced quickly, being promoted every 6 months. taking on on senior roles with or without the title change. That naturally came a mentoring type of role. From there I asked myself: What allows me to get ahead so quickly? What makes others want to work with me compared to a "senior" manager, director, VP, or even C-suite?

I quickly realized it didn't matter if others had oh-so-many years of experience, or whether or not they were some kind of specialist... what mattered was whether they had that >>special<< kind of attraction. The buzzword for it was, and still is, "leadership", and it's something that you can recognize at a glance. The question after that was, can you teach someone to be a leader? -- the answer is YES.

Those I mentored over the years in various industries and organizations have grown into powerful leadership roles, or even started their own businesses!

If you're in a leadership position, wan to be, or didn't know you could be, you're in the right place. Instead of spending years and tens of thousands of dollars to develop this skill, I've condensed what I teach others into an accelerated training that will make this skill available for you in just 2 weekends. The question to say yes now to is... are you ready to be a leader?

Struggles

Why most underappreciated managers's fail to achieve become an influential leader

getting lost in details

You like to optimize the details to get the most out of something. But it feels like the rug is pulled from under you when the "strategy" or the big picture shifts, making your optimizations obsolete.

dealing with symptoms instead of cause

Putting out fires every day keeps you busy. And you're good at it, but you know that it doesn't actually solve the problem and you end up having to fight fires every day instead of put it out at the source.

wasting time finding the "best" solution

You have the specialized knowledge to solve complex problems. But at the same time it holds you back since you solve problems the same way, but may leave the best option for you out of sight.
